

TRAMP DOGS TO BLAME

The Secretary of Agriculture Discusses the Rabies Scare.

He Presents Evidence to Show That the Animals From Virginia and Maryland Are More to Be Feared Than the Well-Pets of Washington—Prominent Citizens' Views.

In a communication from the Secretary of Agriculture to the District Commissioners, dated December 13, relative to rabies in the District of Columbia, it is plainly evident that the Secretary apprehends more danger from tramp dogs that wander from Virginia and Maryland into the District than he does from the well-cared-for dogs that are permitted to exist in this city by virtue of licenses. He refers to positive evidence the department has of the prevalence of rabies in Fairfax and Alexandria counties in Virginia, and Montgomery and Prince George counties in Maryland.

A number of prominent men who are authorities on canine matters have expressed their opinion in The Times that by the exclusion of tramp dogs from the city rabies will cease to exist, or be reduced to a minimum. These citizens say that they regard the official letter of the Secretary of Agriculture as an endorsement of their views. And they reiterate their statements that the muzzling of dogs will not prevent the spread of rabies so long as tramp dogs are permitted to invade the streets in the District.

The official report of the Poundmaster of the District to the Health Officer indicates that he has been stirred up to some activity, but men who profess to have a knowledge of what is being done, say that the Poundmaster's force should be greatly increased and that his efforts to capture stray dogs should be redoubled.

The report indicates that since July 1, 1899, the Poundmaster has captured dogs as follows: July, 125; August, 67; September, 62; October, 48; November, 39; and to December 16, inclusive, 62.

The total number of licenses issued for dogs during the year 1899, was 7,438.

The letter from the Secretary of Agriculture read as follows: "I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 12th inst., with reference to the order of this department concerning the existence of rabies, or hydrophobia, and the measures for its control."

"As to the existence of the disease in the District of Columbia, the evidence in the laboratory of the Bureau of Animal Industry, which have shown the following uncontroverted cases of rabies in dogs during the year 1899:

January 9, 1; March 16, 1; April 13, 1; May 29, 1; August 20, 1; October 27, 1; November 10, 1; November 21, 1; November 21, 1; November 21, 1; December 9, 2.

As rabies is a contagious disease and does not stop except as a consequence of inoculation from a pre-existing case of the disease, it is evident that the contagion has been introduced into this vicinity at least since October 27, and increasing numbers of cases which have been brought to this department for examination indicate the extension of this contagion. The department has also received information, which it considers reliable, of a number of cases of rabies in Montgomery and Prince George counties, Md., and in Alexandria and Fairfax counties, Va. It is also reported that a number of persons have recently been bitten by rabid dogs in the District and under these circumstances it was deemed wise to issue an order giving notification of the existence of this disease and making regulations to prevent its being carried from Maryland and Virginia into the District of Columbia and from the District into these States, as authorized under the act of Congress approved May 25, 1882.

"Your kind offer to co-operate with the department is fully appreciated, and I take pleasure in sending you some copies of the order, and will request that the Police Department be instructed to give notification to persons coming into the District from Maryland and Virginia with dogs of the existence of the disease and the requirement that such dogs should be securely muzzled when upon the streets or in any public places. I would also request that the District Poundmaster be instructed to give special attention to dogs brought into the District, and that in case of violation of the department's regulation the animals be seized. It has not yet been decided whether it is necessary for the department to equip a force with appliances for seizing dogs brought into the District, and it would probably be better for this to be done by the District Poundmaster. The department proposes, however, to send a team of investigation to determine the source of the disease in the adjoining counties, and will, if possible, arrange for co-operation with the authorities of the States of Maryland and Virginia to overcome the evil.

"The increased number of cases of rabies in dogs which has recently developed, and the danger of persons, especially children, being bitten upon the streets, are, it appears to me, sufficient reasons for active measures to arrest the propagation of the contagion.

"Again thanking you for your offer to render assistance, and assuring you that this department is ready to take any steps within its jurisdiction that may be indicated for the eradication of this disease."

"The matter is not one of very great importance," said a Western Representative today, "but I think it is an open question whether the District authorities have a right to first license dogs and then compel their owners to treat them in mid-winter as to make the ownership a nuisance to both the owners and the dogs."

"The District Commissioners have appeared to me for some time to be a set of old women, who, not having enough legitimate business to occupy their minds, find it necessary to fuss with details which should be relegated to their subordinates. No one seriously believes that December is a month in which people should look for an outbreak of rabies."

"Whatever danger there is to the Washington population comes from the stray dogs—animals whose owners, if they have any, pay no tax or license for them, and which are permitted to roam free about the city. These animals should be impounded and then the difficulty will be at an end."

"The license fee is $2, which is the price of a dog tax, to allow a citizen to keep his dog in peace and to permit him to give him a proper amount of exercise. No one seriously believes that December is a month in which people should look for an outbreak of rabies."

"I may say in all sincerity that I have yet to understand the authority of the District Commissioners to make this ordinance. If these three gentlemen are not only the executive but the legislative body as well, it is a fact that has not yet come to the attention of Congress. This is the serious part of the matter."

"Probably the dogs can stand ill-treatment for a few months and perhaps the District revenue from this source can stand without decreased when dog owners learn that licenses amount to nothing, but if the District Commissioners can enact or promulgate laws with reference to dog ownership they can take similar action on other subjects."
